Railroad Mass Meeting.

A large number of our citizens have united in the issue of a public call, for a Mass Meeting of all who are interested in the construction of a railroad up the river to Dexter to assemble at the City Hall in this city at two o'clock P M this day Delegates have been chosen from several of the towns up the river to represent those towns in this meeting and do what is then here to promote it is desirable and important and undertaking Our citizens generally should feel a deep interest in this entire project as it is one of vital importance to the prosperity and growth of the city and to the advancement of the whole region of the State watered by the Penobscot river and its branches The construction of a railroad up the river is an enterprize which is likely to be greatly encouraged by our capitalists It is a home matter, full of local interest and value and which comes home to the bosom and business of the entire people of the Penobscot The construction of this road will cause a handsome advance in all the real estate along its entire route It opens a country for business which else might sleep with all its unawakened energies and wealth giving resources for unnumbered centuries but which is vivified by the steam whistle and brought near to the centre of business and to the city by the time and space annihilating iron horse will immediately unfold into active life There is not an owner of a store or wharf in Bangor or of any of land which lies near and will pass it at a cannot afford to invest half its present value in the stock of the road and he had better give a quarter part of the entire value of such property than not to have the road constructed

This day the grand movement is to be made in favor of this great enterprise Every citizen of Bangor should be alive with interest regarding it The City Hall should be crowded and a full free talk should be had upon the subject facts and figures and suggestions should be brought forward, and the whole matter illuminated, and laid before the mind of the county, so that each man shall have something to reflect upon and be furnished with all the arguments bearing upon the subject. The concentration can be carried forward if the people will it Assurances have already been given that, if it is properly and extensively entered into a warm interest in the work a large subscription will be made by those of our citizens who have the means to spare We call then upon every Bangor man to show his interest and his approbation of this great enterprise of the day

Examination of the Public Schools.

It will be seen on referring to a notice of the Superintending School Committee in another column that the public schools of the city are to be examined during the present week

There is a duty which every good citizen owes to his country and to the progress of the race, to give encouragement to the education of the rising generation and this duty is vastly increased when the citizen becomes a parent and has offspring are the subjects of education Many are the public schools have powerful influences over teachers and pupils that prove the interest which the citizen and the parent feels in the great work going on day by day in the schoolroom and the fire of this interest is apt to touch and dispirit Children attending school seem a large portion of the day away from home influenced under the system of training more or less perfect which cannot fail to be developed in after life and it is of no consequence to loving parents what that training is? Do they not wish that it may be the best possible and the most potent? But how can they know anything of this or how give their influence to this end, if they do not visit the schools? It may be that a word fitly spoken before a school may have an influence upon every member of the school long after to a higher moral standpoint or giving some minds a current to greater excellence and to worthier aims Such impulses may reasonably be expected from visits to the public schools and now and then impulses may come home to the mind of the visitor, causing him to enter a wider and better influence and help of the right education of those into whose hands the great interests of the future men and women of our country are soon to be committed

It is a great thing to provide suitable school rooms, and employ competent teachers and supply the necessary text books But this is not all that is required and the well being of the school in the balance may greatly lessen the value of the above! Visit the schools become interested in their welfare and progress, and you enhance the value of all the rest, you strengthen the hands and encourage the hopes and halt to the favorable influence of the teacher and furnish new incentives to the pupils

The public examinations will be of untold value if they shall cause parents to visit the schools if only on these occasions. We cannot but express the hope that parents will during the present week make it a point to attend the examinations as a matter of love for the schools and for their children if they can from this high motive But if not for this that they will do so as a matter of duty and if not from these motives why then as a matter of fashion

☞ The Boston Transcript states that extensive preparations are in progress for building in Boston the coming season. The increasing facilities for procuring money by the larger amounts seeking investments and the confidence felt in the value of real estate will cause lands and buildings to be the favorite resorts for capital. Investment of capital in buildings will give a general start to real estate, will encourage and stimulate labor, and make a market for greater amounts of lumber and thus help forward the general prosperity, particularly of Maine and the Penobscot.

☞ It is proposed in New York to present to Capt James West a service of plate as a testimonial of the public admiration for his skill and care in the recent eventful voyage of the Atlantic. Mr Henry John Sharpe, of London, has already sent one hundred dollars to be appropriated to this object.

Death and Burial of Gen Bem.

A letter dated Aleppo Dec 10th gives the following painfully interesting particulars of the end of this brave soldier

A bitter sorrow has interposed to determine the burial of poor Bem's detention in this place I have just returned from his funeral And how and very little was the ceremonies, yet there is a melancholy pleasure in observing the rites paid at such a time by foreigners in a strange land—Bem's sickness was rather very long not passing a month before his death he who rides your Sultan's horse would not believe himself dangerously ill and anxiety and I could not feel induced to take any medicine Once or four days before his death

It is well to lay very low between gardens near the banks of the river According to the custom of this clime the spot was excellently chosen, where also he however were deposited Every physician told him that his disease was weakened with words he said hardly ever visit a free sufferer which would be danger our doing and which in that all probability we are doing his unhealthy, dog! In the evening he complained of pain in the abdomen about the region of the liver which would be diagnosed as inflammation of the liver, which he died! After next morning we went to visit him His body lay extended upon a bed several persons were engaged in washing and dressing the corpse while mattings were prepared gratis

His wash ups end of the bed was on a table, and according to the custom of the place in which he lay the box A red shawl was spread over the coffin A bullet ornament hung over the coffin Looking however on his ocean face and the remains of the melancholy thoughtfulness and English Consul many officers and an immense crowd of soldiers as pallbearers The process on moving was in good order From vanity to the grave the guarded first and began a procession of full dress Europeans We dare call him to the grave as he was going to be laid in the place of rest, but I understood it not to be a

After the funeral service and over words and a tolerable last glimpse of the coffin Strong coffin was opened to the Europeans present many of the Turks of which crowded forward to carry the body from Lashes and I must confess being a hand Near by the house I was deprived in the grave I saw the where the graves were laid Arranged the graves the body was taken out of the coffin and deposited the grave we are 6 feet deep the head lay to the Mecca

The burials by which the winding sheet was we did with the earth of the grave was filled well large that it needs promise which Bem had to relate to the entire history of his life is not been fulfilled It is stated that I was over 60 years of age although he appeared much younger His body was uncommonly muscular and his restless spirit retained its force of vanity to this last

It would seem from the above account that Bem had of rebodying of any preaching creed he had professed

Italy—Preparations for another Insurrection

The Paris correspondent of the London Times writes as follows

I receive letters from Geneva of the 29th ult stating that the refugees French Poles Germans Italians &c who had been sent into the Canton de Vaud have all left rendering that city's neighborhood a desert in the Sardinian dominions and for some time past has been actively engaged in the recruiting service of the revolution The money in question was supplied by Mazzini and the Socialist party in England and it was calculated that 3000 men could be raised for the Italian campaign

To the Editor of the Daily Whig and Courier

Your paper of the 19th contains an article over the signature of one Edward M Field which the writer states is intended to substantiate in previous articles and also to refute my correction of the errors contained in his statement. Both of these statements appeared in the Mercury of last week

But before making any reply, I wish it to be distinctly understood that at the time of writing my first article which appeared in the Mercury I was not aware of the source of Mr Edward M Field's statement I had never met, or had the slightest acquaintance with him and therefore must disclaim all personal feelings in this matter As the habit of magnifying trifling affairs of a medical or surgical nature has from time immemorial been a favorite resort of quacks it should always be seductively avoided and condemned, however alluring it may appear to the young aspirant in medicine Young Edward M Field is just commencing here and as a person comparatively unknown and of no I will readily overlook the rudeness in communication, hoping that by kind encouragement he may in future be led to select more honorable course in attempting to gain notoriety

The occasion of the dispute is as follows—

Norman of this city on a pleasure excursion in the woods was accidentally shot with a ball from his own gun At the time of the accident he was standing with the muzzle of the gun below the hips The ball passed through several thicknesses of clothing entered the flesh opposite the tenth rib of the right side, and leaving a point near to the same rib of the same side He immediately sank to the ground, walked a short distance calmly stated to his companions the accident and was then assisted to walk into a room near by Medical assistance was immediately sent for and the next day he was conveyed to his city a distance of nearly thirty miles The facts as I have now stated them were very generally known in the city at the time of their occurrence and therefore it was with no small degree of surprise that I read the article in the Mercury stating that the ball had entered the abdomen passing beneath the ribs and piercing in its exit the walls of the chest An attempt was made to support this statement by quoting a few of the symptoms the post mortem and exhibited the course of the ball beneath the skin And because these casual symptoms did not or had not existed, there was considered no room for doubt. But the ridiculous absurdity of this half finished statement in its hasty deduction is evident to every medical man who reads it. The case as above, or the inexperienced surgeon at first sight suppose that the ball from the entrance to its exit, had followed a straight course but the man skilled in his profession either as a physician or a surgeon, knows that wounds of the large cavities or of any of the organs contained in them are fallacious by symptoms as marked as those of a broken leg. Some of these symptoms I enumerated and stated on good authority that they have not existed In regard to the course of the ball I made use of a quotation to prove that no external course was the most natural one and that I believe an can rely in fact in surgery that a ball can pass through the concave surface of the thorax or of the chest and then pass out at a right angle's One would more naturally think that it would continue its course and pass out from the other side I stated particularly that in cases of obscurity, where a careful examination of the wound is deemed unable in the presence or absence of these symptoms—I of inflammation of the abdomen or of any of its contained organs—is of the utmost importance and if left undiagnosed, no surgeon is to be surgeon if forming his opinion as the knowledge gained from actual inspection or examination of the wound Now I ask how is the absence of these symptoms to be explained? The answer to this question has not so far as I can see been, attempted With the surgeon it settles the case Let us see what has been attempted My first point in regard to the external indications is admitted very good At the time of writing this first article to speak of the indications of the external course of the ball, Edward M Field says No such indications exist of have been and Now, however, he says for an oval and a half above the lower art flow there is a dark line upon the skin, and pus is being discharged More than this, is a contradiction between the two statements Who are we to believe?

The statement that the thickness of the garments covering the ribs and abdomen is only one fourth of an inch, is merely an assertion and in this case I think a false one I have myself seen upon the table of the dissecting room these integuments between three and four inches thick but allowing them to be only one fourth of an inch, would it be a more difficult passage for the ball than that between the delicate serous membrane and the ribs, which as the ternal course assigned for it? A surgeon of this city was applied to a short time since by a person who had been shot in the forehead with a large sized buck shot, nearly as large as our common rifle balls The man declared that the shot was in the brain There was not the slightest mark to indicate a course external to the skull but yet, to his great surprise the ball was found lodged in the back of the neck and was extracted

We next find our young friend 'groping in a shadow land of conjecture'—Mr. Edward M Field has taken a false issue The statement on which he now speculates and reasons medical compositus as not to be found in my article Read again Mr. Field and you will find that I said of the wounds of the cavity of the abdomen are almost invariably followed by peritoneal inflammation, &c., and the proof of these statements is to be found in ALL surgical writers! One word in regard to the medical stories adduced They are the fortunate cases,—the exceptions to the general rule, and prove exceptions only. I have myself seen the man who had a large ball fired shot completely through the head walk into a room with the bar in his hand. But I do not on that account believe that the shooting of crow bars through people's heads would be a safe practice. The case of the Indian wounded with the broken glass of his pocket flask, I remember well, for I was called upon at the time to render him medical assistance. Under a report of the case at the time, and it differs from your statement. I am well aware of the slight punctures of the abdomen for dropsies There was nothing in my article to call for an allusion to them I have seen many of the operations where the peritoneum is entirely wounded You seem to have forgotten that the majority of them are fatal! Does Mr Edward M Field remember the wound of the liver of Peter Dugon, that I examined Tuesday? It was not so large as that of an ounce ball, and yet was stated to have been sufficient to have caused his death Wounds of the lungs communicating with the air through the walls of the chest are almost daily fatal Wounds That blowing of the air through the blood and fluids can no fer be mistaken of after having been once heard I will not fill your columns Mr Editor with medical stories of their breadth scopes to tire your readers but to those who are curious in these matters I will offer any quantity of small amusements in medical books and reviews and you will allow me to state that the most them relate to wounds of one or two organs only. A case like the one the claimed would contest the claim for surgery with the one bar case with the odds in favor of the latter

As to the point in question being undisputed by most of the medical gentlemen I believe had the opportunity of examining the post mortem—that may be true and yet admit nothing at all I have heard of a patient who accused his medical advisors of dealing to amputate his leg without even taking the pains to examine it but to this the patient objected. The consequence was that he saved his leg and is now able to use it for its legitimate purposes In regard to the case that we have been discussing I had the chest anatomy for my statements before replying to the first article of Mr [illegible] and as my reasons yet remain unanswered, my opinion has only been strengthened by his abortive attempt.

I hate thought, when offering my humble article to the Mercury that I should meet with a surname an occupant from a man that on from the mighty intellect of this renowned brilliant having and polite Edward M Field I was heedlessly correcting as I supposed some blunder in technicalities and medical errors through the carelessness in which he made his report; and as he has fled to this paper with the assurance that another article will be continued

AMERICAN HOUSE,
HANOVER STREET,
BOSTON.

THE undersigned having entire REBUILT and ENLARGED the above extensive establishment, containing in all about three hundred and fifty rooms, would respectfully give notice that it is now ready for the reception and accommodation of the travelling community.
An extended choice of the unsurpassed conveniences of this House is deemed superfluous, as the numerous improvements which have been made cannot be properly given in an advertisement—suffice it to say that no expense has been spared to render any apartment perfect.
The furnitures were made expressly to order, regardless of cost, and certain portions of it, especially the Drawing rooms, will be found to be of the most beautiful and tasteful manufacture. The Dining-rooms are capacious, and the hours for meals will be so arranged as to suit the convenience of the early and late.
Every department will be conducted in an unexceptionable manner, and the Proprietor pledges himself that the American House shall be truly the Traveller's Home.

THE Great American Remedy

FOR Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Croup, and all diseases of the Chest, has now been so long before the public, and its use so well established, both from recommendations of Physicians, and from the favorable opinions of the virtues by all who have tried it, as to render it unnecessary to say more than that it will accomplish immediately the same wonders in the case of every other sufferer. For the same and kindred complaints, it can never be out of use in a family, and can never be out long enough to double the usual dose; it almost invariably controls the child in the first stages of croup, and relieves and quiets it immediately. For quite a number of years it has been the favorite and universal remedy in all the cases named, of one of the most celebrated and skilful Physicians.

Sold wholesale and retail by R. K. HARDY, at No 3 Hatlow's Block, Bangor; and by Druggists generally throughout the country. All orders will be promptly attended to. nov 18

ELEGANT AND VALUABLE Articles for the Toilet.

Bogle's Hyperion Fluid.

For Beautifying, Preserving, and Embellishing the HAIR.

Bogle's Hyperion Fluid—Since the introduction of this unparalleled article, by the proprietor, it has been received with the highest encomiums of approbation from the ladies of Boston, which will show the estimation which it is held in, for its purity and beautiful, healing properties of the hair.

Boston, Feb. 15, 1847.

The following letter from Dr. Winslow Lewis, one of the most eminent physicians of Boston, will show the estimation which it is held in, for its purity and beautiful, healing properties of the hair.

Bogle's Hyperion Fluid—Sir,—I have repeatedly tried, by the application of your Hyperion Fluid, the effects of the article, and have given it to the fairest portion of my patients, and have the pleasure to say that it has restored hair, and cleansed the skin from all impurities. I have no hesitation in saying that it is the most delightful, and at the same time, effectual preparation for the hair that I have ever known, and I take pleasure in recommending it to the public as such.

WINSLOW LEWIS.

It is the most delightful article for the Ladies' toilet that has been introduced, and for children it is invaluable.

BOGLE'S AMORE,

A COMPOUND FOR SHAVING.

This article is totally different from any other now in use for shaving, and is the only preparation that will soften the beard, so as to shave with ease, without the use of water. It is so strong in its nature, that it will shave the beard off from the face, and leave it as smooth as a child's, without any irritation, and is perfectly safe to use on the tenderest skin. It softens and heals the skin, and prevents chapping in the severest weather, which does not follow the use of any other article. It also heals and cleanses the skin from all impurities, and leaves the face soft and pliable. It is the result of many years' study and experiment by one of the most scientific chemists in the country, well known to the public as the inventor of the celebrated

Bogle's Hyperion Fluid,

FOR RESTORING AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION.

Shaddowing Tan, Pimples, and other sensations of the skin, and restoring the delicate and beautiful bloom of youth. It is composed entirely of vegetable substances, and is perfectly safe to use on the most delicate skin. It is also a most delightful article for the toilet, and is highly recommended by the ladies of Boston, who have used it. It is put up in handsome cut glass bottles, and is sold at 50 cents per bottle.

THE GENUINE BALM OF COLUMBIA

IF you wish a rich, luxurious head of hair, free from dandruff and all impurities, do not fail to procure the genuine Balm of Columbia. In a few days after the use of this delightful article, the hair will be restored to its original beauty and richness, no matter how far the use of the hair may have progressed. It is warranted to cure any disease of the hair, from whatever cause it may arise, and to prevent it falling off, or turning gray, in any climate. It will in a few days restore red or light hair to a rich, glossy appearance, and is the only article ever known that will stop the hair from falling out. It cures more than any other article ever discovered, and is more delightful to the taste than any other preparation for the hair. Use no other, as it will only injure the hair and scalp, and is worse than nothing. Use the genuine Balm of Columbia, and you will be sure to have a rich, glossy appearance to the hair. Use it for the toilet, and you will find it the most delightful article ever used. A few applications only are necessary to keep the hair from falling out. It cures more than one-half of all cases of baldness, and in all cases of injury to the hair from whatever cause it may arise. Use it for children, and it will prevent baldness in after years. Use it for the whiskers and it will make a splendid set. Remember that this is the only article that will restore hair on bald heads. Any further information can be had upon application to the agent, or by calling upon me I can convince them of the healing power of this article.

STEPHEN HAYWOOD,
Augusta, April 23, 1850.
